If one is lacking ki in the body, the body will be weak. Ki gong exercise will help ki to flow by breathing, strengthening the body and in some cases preventing and curing disease. To flow the ki, one must regulate the breathing while relaxing the mind and body. In eastern medical theories Ki is more important than blood. Ki leads the blood to flow.

Learn the KI-gong technique and enjoy the feeling of KI energy flow smoothly through your body . The Korean Grandmaster Eun Am is a specialist in the body's ki energy and the internal balance /healing. He is a third generation medicine man from a highly respected family. The family has treated many prominent people, including presidents in Korea.
